Q59. You can submit your comments in the text box below.

There is a MAJOR gap in the draft standards: the need to specify a minimum standard for the size of apartments. I have visited apartments for sale to which the term 'dog boxes' is appropriate. Victoria needs to follow the lead set by NSW and set MINIMUM SIZES for apartments e.g.. at least 50 square metres for one-bedroom apartments, 65 square metres for two-bedrooms and 90 square metres for three bedrooms. To leave these specifications out is totally unacceptable and will inevitably result in more 'dog boxes'. As an investor, I am not interested in buying apartments that are already unsatisfactory at the point of completion, and will be the slums of the future.
